Murder-trial jury enters third day of deliberation Wednesday to decide James Kartell: Free man or convict?

By Neil Fater

Twelve jurors entered their third day of deliberation yesterday, Wednesday, pondering whether Andover surgeon James Kartell shot his wife's lover, Janos Vajda, to save himself from harm, or in a calculated move to save his marriage.

Following closing arguments Monday, Judge Isaac Borenstein told the jurors they can deliberate from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day until they reach a verdict.

The jury spent a quiet Monday afternoon, Tuesday and Wednesday morning until Townsmen press time behind closed doors, rarely venturing from the room.

It will decide if Kartell is guilty of first-degree murder, second-degree murder or voluntary manslaughter, or if he was a victim himself, who fired his gun twice in self-defense.

During closing arguments Monday, the lawyers for both sides tried to convince the jurors to take back a wildly different picture of James Kartell with them into their deliberations.

"There's probably nothing more important than being a juror in a murder trial," said J.W. Carney, Kartell's defense attorney. "And to me there's nothing more stressful than to be a lawyer representing an innocent man."

Walking behind the defendant's table, Carney stood behind Kartell and said, "This is not a man who's a murderer."

Carney described Kartell as a sad man who was more prone to

Sewer rates rise, another increase projected

By Neil Fater

As the town begins its five-year sewer expansion project this year, current sewer users will see an increase in the amount they pay to flush.

The average sewer user will pay $36 more next year (fiscal year 2001) than they did this year, meaning sewer users have seen an 800-percent increase in their rates since 1975.

Next year's sewer-rate increase is 30 cents per 100 cubic feet of water used.

Sewer users can expect another increase the year after next, though

Finance Director Tony Torrisi says the FY 2002 increase "won't be as high."

"I expect it to be a little bit less. We'll try to keep it less than 25 cents," he says.

Torrisi says the 2001 increase is mostly related to the cost of designing the sewer expansion projects for the South Main and Rogers Brook areas.

The next year, residents will start to pay for the sewer construction costs themselves. Andover bylaws require two-thirds the cost of new sewer construction to be paid for through betterments and one-third to be paid for by existing sewer users. Betterments are charged to homeowners who can connect to sewer because of the project.

"Then, if things in terms of the sewer construction and the betterments go as we figure, we should be able to keep the rates stable for three years," says Torrisi.

Selectman Lori Becker says selectmen will keep an eye on these rates.

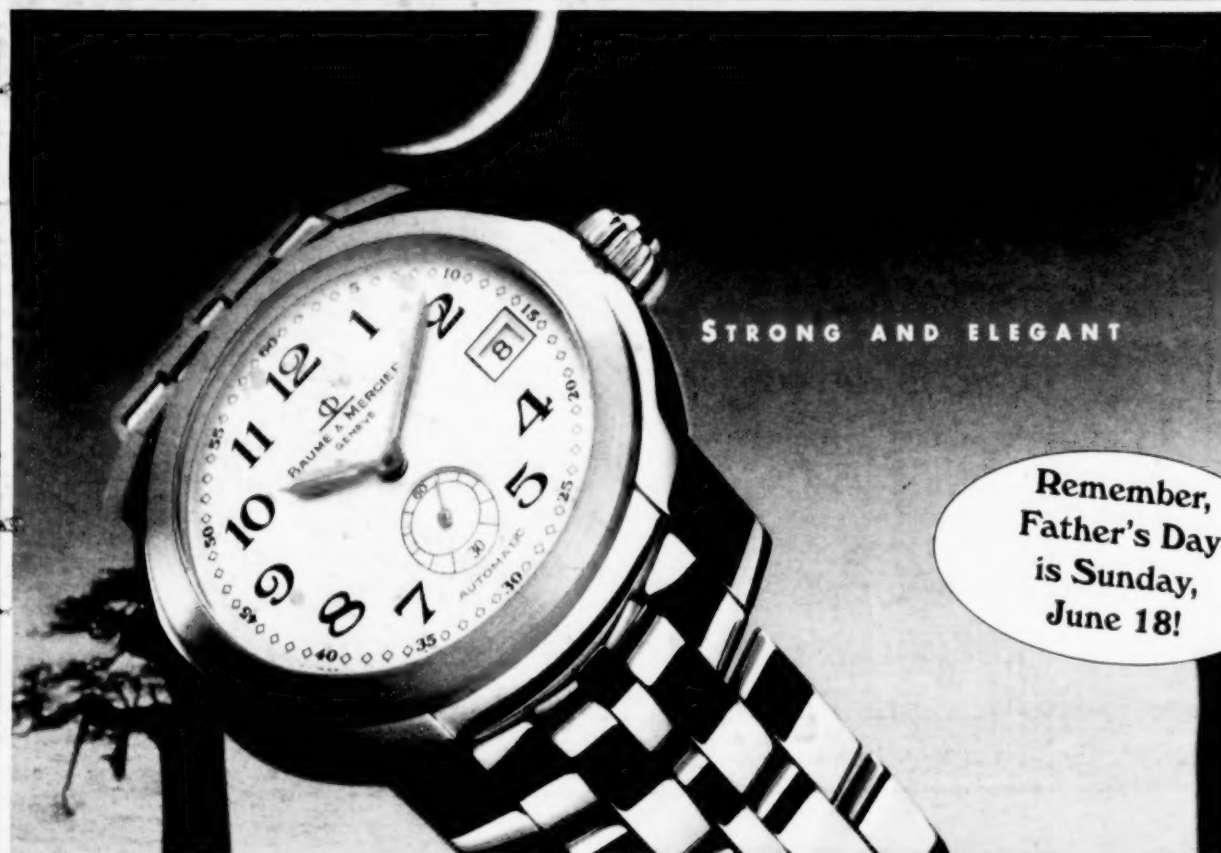

"(Torrisi) said it would go down after a few years, and we'll hold him to it," says Becker. "But we haven't had an increase in so long, I think it's just the cost of doing

A point of light — Andover residents Zachary J. Costello and Jonathan J. Costello met former President George Bush on May 21 at a private reception at the Boston Harbor Hotel, Boston. They are the sons of Jay and Susan Costello. Susan Costello is the Republican State Committeewoman for the Second Essex/Middlesex Senatorial District.

Youth cops seize prize; nationals next

Future crime fighters

Whereas other Andover kids might dream of careers in Hollywood or professional sports, it's a spot in the line of duty that excites a handful of junior police officers.

In affiliation with the Boy Scouts of America, the Andover Law Enforcement Explorer Post gives local residents a chance to fulfill these crime-fighting fantasies. From registering bikes to directing traffic at town events, Explorer participants — 14- to 21-year-old residents with an interest in law enforcement — get an inside look at police life.

"They do a myriad of different things," says Andover Sergeant Lee Britton, a supervisor of the program. "We expose (the kids) to different facets of law enforcement."

Every year, the junior officers bring their passion for various police work to a statewide conference that features seminars in crisis intervention, crime scene search, and firearm instruction. During a May 27 conference in Bolton, Mass., Andover Explorers Felix Kessler and Richard Laverde won a contest where they had to initiate a motor vehicle stop and prepare for distinct scenarios, from a felony to giving a speeding ticket.

"They don't know what they're going to get into when they stop the car," says Britton.

In August, several members of the post will travel down to Connecticut for an Explorer Police Academy event. That way, the kids hope to gain valuable hands-on training before the nationals, which takes place every two years, says Britton.

"This is all a learning experience in preparation for the national competition," he says.

To fund their trip to the nationals, the Explorers raise money by themselves. But with the program

NEWS IN BRIEF

The Park rededicated, with help from students

On June 13, Andover Park 2000 was dedicated to the citizens of Andover at a ceremony in the Park off Chestnut and Bartlet streets, attended by Doherty Middle School eighth graders, parents, and school and town officials.

For several months, 250 Doherty eighth-graders have been involved in a community service project to provide Andover with a visual record of the Park's and town's historic and natural history.

With the assistance of Jack O'Donnell, Superintendent of Parks and Trees, team 8B students identified all the park's trees which will have permanent plaques with their Latin and English names.

Team 8C students worked with Barbara Thibault and her staff at the Andover Historical Society to research Andover's history. The research was printed on plaques and placed on park benches dedicated to people who have had a significant impact on Andover's history.

Team 8A students painted the benches, mounted plaques and prepared the garden surrounding five boulders placed in the Park, representing a century in Andover's history. The plaques describe key events of the designated century.

Andover residents with a worn or damaged American flag of any size may bring it to the veterans services office, on the main floor of Town Offices, for proper disposal.

Station to station study

The Merrimack Valley Regional Transit Authority workshop seeking comment on the Andover commuter rail station is scheduled for tonight, Thursday, June 22, at 6:30 in Memorial Hall Library. Another workshop, for the Ballardvale commuter rail station, is set for Thursday, June 29, at 6:30 p.m. in Memorial Hall Library.

Seniors seek support

Andover seniors are inviting people to march with them in the Horribles Parade July 4, and to show "support for a new senior center with a donation of $10 for a T-shirt to wear in the parade."

Shirts are available at the Senior Center or at the Friends shop located at 24 Park St.

Seniors will assemble to march in front of Town Offices at 9 a.m.

Web question

Because about 60 percent of Andover High School students now make the honor roll, last week's Web question asked residents if they feel the honor roll is no longer deserving of that name.

With 30 people responding as of early Wednesday, there was a clear-cut feeling. A full 80 percent of the people responding said they feel the honor roll is no longer deserving of that name.

With people still talking about a recent High School incident, this week's question is: Should the schools have let a boy graduate with his class after he was found carrying a vial with marijuana residue in it during a class trip?

costing about $1,000 per person, the young crime fighters could use some help, he says.

A 'Friendly' story

"It's always nice to have a friend when you're alone," says Olivia Scileppi, volunteer coordinator of "Friendly Visitors" — a program that matches individuals and families with local elderly in need of companionship.

Thanks to the efforts of Scileppi and her staff, which includes three social workers and a geriatric nurse, over 300 elderly have found new friends since the inception of the Friendly Visitors program nearly four years ago.

"So many people have bonded and made great friends," says Scileppi, whose duties involve recruiting and training prospective visitors as well as monitoring the progress of 50 active volunteers. "And they stay really, really good friends."

The town of Andover, which funds "Friendly Visitors" in conjunction with the Home for the Aged, acknowledged the program participants at a dinner held June 14. The recognition was well-deserved, at least according to Scileppi.

"It's the most wonderful program," she says. "It's fabulous."

Andover elderly seem to feel the same way. Just ask Eva Loosigian, an 86-year-old widow whose experiences with volunteer Debbie Hackman include shopping trips and games of Scrabble.

"There's a lot of love in her," says Loosigian of her friendly visitor. "She's very kind and generous."

Loosigian says she looks forward to seeing children, especially the 8- and 10-year-old daughters of her pal Hackman. But she also enjoys receiving periodic visits from her surrogate son, Tonight Show host Jay Leno.

After his own folks passed away, Leno adopted Loosigian and her late husband — the parents of one of his Andover classmates — as his replacement parents, she says. The late-night comedian still invites Loosigian to his show frequently and, as she explains, even calls her "Mom."

"No matter how big he gets, he never forgets his roots," she says. "He makes [me] feel like a VIP."

Her claim-to-fame aside, it's the kindness of both Leno and her friendly visitor that Loosigian prefers to emphasize.

"There's so many kind people in the world," she says. "I'm lucky to have them."

Horse program's new grant could help it ride off with land

By Dawn Shea

Challenge Unlimited, a non-profit organization that provides physical and occupational therapy using horses, is $50,000 closer to buying the Ironstone Farm property in Andover, thanks to a grant from The Harpley Foundation.

Challenge Unlimited has been soliciting donations from corporations and the community since December 1999 in order to raise the $600,000 needed to purchase the 22-acre farm where it has operated since its inception in 1983.

Mary Jane Harpley, a trustee of The Harpley Foundation, which honors the memory of her father, heard about Challenge Unlimited from her boss, who heard Deedee O'Brien, executive director of Challenge Unlimited, speak at a luncheon. Harpley was intrigued, and met with O'Brien to learn more.

"I toured them," says Harpley who was impressed with the program and the people behind it. "You know how you meet some people and you just know they're into what they're doing?" According to Harpley, the energy and commitment of O'Brien was essential in influencing her decision to grant money to Challenge Unlimited.

Harpley, an Andover resident who founded and now runs the Foundation with her three sisters and mother, says she likes to provide grants to local, grassroots organizations.

The family established the foundation in 1993 to honor the community spirit of their father and husband, Ted Harpley, who was the co-founder and vice-president of Andover-based Vicor Corp. Harpley was unaware of the wealth of money he had, and his family only learned of it after his death. Harpley and her family believed the money would better serve non-profit organizations than themselves, and set up the foundation.

"We feel like we're doing what Dad would have done," she reflects, noting her father's philosophy that neighbors should help neighbors.

By providing the largest single grant the foundation has given to date, the Harpley family has put Challenge Unlimited at over $400,000 toward the purchase price of Ironstone Farm. "I wanted to impact, make a dent in that," asserts Harpley, referring to the $600,000 needed.

During her tour of the farm, Harpley had an opportunity to see Challenge Unlimited in action.

"When (the children) get together with these horses, there's unbelievable chemistry," says Harpley.

Challenge Unlimited's mission "is to provide effective therapy for individuals with physical, cognitive, and emotional disabilities using horses and a work environment while involving people in helping others through volunteer services."

This mission is carried out through two programs, Challenge Unlimited and Ironstone Therapy.

Andover law school continues fight with ABA

By Rebecca Piro

Approximately seven years after the American Bar Association first refused accreditation to the Massachusetts School of Law, MSL is still fighting to squelch the ABA's "bottleneck monopoly power" over law schools nationwide.

MSL maintains that the ABA's list of regulations have been structuring legal education to be "one of the most non-competitive, non-innovative industries imaginable, and to charge very high prices," according to a recent letter written by Dean Lawrence Velvel to the Department of Justice.

MSL, located on Federal Street in Andover, was founded in 1988 "specifically to provide entry to the legal profession for working-class students" with a current $12,300 yearly tuition. The school was refused the ABA's specialized accreditation because it did not meet several ABA requirements back in 1993.

After ABA accreditation was initially refused, MSL's student body sank nearly by one-half.

Without ABA accreditation, students of MSL cannot sit for the bar exam, nor can they practice law outside of Massachusetts. However, after many years of petitioning, about eight states, including all of New England except Rhode Island, have agreed to grant MSL graduates permission to work as licensed lawyers.

But such anti-competitive actions should not be permissible by the ABA, says MSL.

MSL and the Department of Justice attacked these so-called anti-competitive rules for accreditation back in the mid-'90s by filing an antitrust suit against the association.

A consent decree was reached where the ABA

MSL Dean Lawrence Velvel

agreed to form a committee within itself to supervise activities of the accrediting arm, now known as the Council of the Section of Legal Education. However, MSL says it seems no progress has been made since the decree's implementation. In fact, according to a June press release from MSL, the Department of Justice has made a motion to weaken the consent decree. Such a motion would make the council "the sole ultimate decision-making authority in accreditation matters," said MSL.

This motion was a sign of the justice department's "sell-out" to the ABA, it said.

In response, MSL filed a request for amicus curiae, or friend of the court, 60 days ago, urging the court to deny the justice department's motion to weaken the consent decree.

MSL, which is accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges, is also petitioning the District of Columbia to allow its students to sit for the bar exam and practice law in Washington D.C.

Today MSL is making the most of its 450 student body, said Assistant Dean Michael Coyne, with smaller class sizes and a smaller teacher-student ratio.

ALL THOSE YEARS AGO

100 Years Ago

The second annual J.W. Barnard prize competition, in which judges evaluated the literary merit and oratory excellence of student essays, took place at Punchard Hall. The $20 first prize went to Stanley Abbot Pratt for his piece, "Leather Stocking — A Character Sketch."

Prominent Andover citizen

An advertisement for Edison's phonograph promised that every machine, besides reproducing the music of any instrument, would come autographed by Edison himself.

Several boys from the Methodist Sunday School in Malden observed Bunker Hill Day by swimming in Haggetts Pond. Unfortunately, the revelers were arrested for contaminating town water.

75 Years Ago

Sixty years of alumni, including the six living members from the Class of 1875, gathered at Punchard Hall for a high-school reunion. The event proceedings included a banquet as well as a seven-inning baseball game between the current school team and the alumni.

Town Clerk George A. Higgins received two historical pamphlets compiled by Edmund Parsons, the town clerk in Andover, England. The first, entitled "Andover Charters," contained a series of charters granted by the Kings of England to Andover citizens in the year 1175. The second, called "Notes on the History of Andover," painted a picture of life in Andover during previous centuries.

Winds of change were stagnant

About a year ago, former Selectman Larry Larsen floated the shocking idea of a sweeping town-charter review.

Realizing the seismic changes this might bring to town government, other officials objected.

"Possibly no single issue has caused as much furor as when I proposed this," said Larsen at the time.

But the charter had not been reviewed since it was established in the 1950s. With people complaining about Town Meeting it seemed time to talk about improving government, argued Larsen.

In January, selectmen agreed to go along with Larsen's idea, and voted to form a charter commission.

Larsen suggested the commission should look into such issues as whether:

- Town Meeting should be changed;
- the Finance Committee should be elected;
- there should be more than five selectmen; and
- the moderator should be elected for more than one year at a time.

With the vast changes in Andover's population, income and goals since 1950, it seemed to make sense to at least discuss these and other changes.

Yet now, more than five full months after selectmen voted to form a charter commission, nothing has happened.

For his part, Town Moderator Jim Doherty has formed a committee of government leaders to look at tinkering with Town Meeting.

But the charter review is something very different.

It has the power to eliminate Town Meeting itself.

Eliminating Town Meeting — direct democracy — would be a bad idea. And it's possible that none of the proposed changes would improve town government. But a community should not refuse to discuss change. Particularly not after its leaders have pledged to do just that.

Selectmen Chairman Brian Major said Wednesday that selectmen will address the issue at their next meeting. It's certainly time for it.

After their January vote, selectmen said they expected a report from the charter commission in two years.

Five months have passed, and no one's even been named to a commission to file a report on how to improve government.

No need to remain idle on train parking

Neil Fater

Commuters who take the morning train to Boston know the drill.

Arrive at just after 7 a.m. and you'll get a parking space. Oversleep by a few minutes, spill some coffee or answer a morning phone call and you'll end up circling for a place to park — or possibly having to drive into Boston anyway.

But what to do about this long-standing problem?

Andover State Rep. Barry Finegold believes he may have an answer.

Taking a page from his role in changing Route 125, Finegold is suggesting that residents meet with state transportation officials. So, there will be meetings with the Merrimack Valley Regional Transit Authority tonight, June 22, and next Thursday, at 6:30 p.m. in Memorial Hall Library.

Tonight's meeting will focus on the Andover, or Railroad Street, station and its problems. The June 29 meeting will address the Ballardvale station.

"What people really need to do is come and put their thoughts on what the future of the town should be," says Finegold. "Would people rather have buses from Andover to the station in Woburn? Do we need more parking? What do the neighbors think of that? It's really an open dialogue."

Say this for Finegold: He's studied the all-politics-is-local theory. And instead of just fixing potholes, he's addressing something more important to all those Andover businesspeople who travel back and forth to Boston each day.

He's shortening their commute.

"I think it's one of the most important things that government can do," says Finegold, of improving roads and rail service. "If we can't get people to and from their jobs, then we're not doing the job."

During his time as state representative Finegold has become most identifiable with transportation issues.

He's been involved with putting lights and other restrictions on Route 125. He can take at least some credit for opening the I-93 breakdown lane during rush hour. He's pushed to reopen Shawsheen train station, and now wants to use it for commuters traveling to Andover from the Boston area.

"Andover has the fifth largest working population in the state. We really have a reverse commuting situation that we need to deal with," he says.

Finegold believes that making sure employees can get in and out of Andover will help make sure companies don't want to get out of Andover at all. He says companies are beginning to leave Silicon Valley because employees have such difficulty with traffic there.

"I don't want our valley to become like their valley. We have companies like Cisco, Sun, CMGI. This is becoming the new hub for the high-tech community. Along the 495 belt, I expect massive growth in residential population, and commercial development as well," he says.

That's why Finegold also wants to start talks about expanding Interstate 495 around the Andover area.

"In the next 10 years, that's going to be the biggest growth area in the state," he says. "Do we need (I-495 expansion) now? Probably not. But I know these highway projects take a long time."

Good students, teachers why majority of High School is on honor roll

Editor, Townsman:

Reporter Rebecca Piro's comments in her June 15 article, "Are honors an honor?" seem incomplete. She considers "inflated grades, too-easy classes, or honor roll requirements themselves," as reasons for so many students achieving honors.

She doesn't consider good teachers, good students and good schools as possible reasons. The suggestion seems to be that if many students score well, this can only indicate some level of educational failure.

Of course, schools must at all times challenge students; but I'd like to suggest, to those who think that our schools do not, try taking a ninth-grade exam.

Stop whining, student got his diploma

Editor, Townsman:

For a while I have been sort of fuming, if you will. OK, here in Andover, the home of all education freaks, we have a senior that did get his diploma but was not allowed to be in the ceremonies. Well, too bad!

And, these are so-called educated parents who are doing the most whining and that is what it is — whining.

Of course, they have a few of the cocktail circuit friends with them. Well, one can say to these so-called believers in education, "it all depends on whose ox is being gored."

One, I recently received my diploma after some 57 years, from Chatham High School, Chatham, Mass. I volunteered for the Infantry in World War II and landed on D-Day, H-Hour on Utah Beach... at the age of 17. So, to hear the "whining" from these people is really something!

And, as long as I am on this "kick," I have one question. Where was the Andover High School band on Memorial Day? No doubt they had more pressing educational duties to attend to. What a joke to the so-called education junkies.

Collins Center parking tickets not the ticket

Editor, Townsman:

Arriving at the school at 1 p.m. for a 2 p.m. show, we searched the parking

Hockey association warm to Phillips rink

Editor, Townsman:

Having anticipated construction of a new ice rink at Phillips Academy for many years, it is with great excitement and relief that it finally seems to be close at hand.

Andover Hockey Association looks forward to continuing a strong relationship with PA that has spanned nearly four decades. Our association was started many years ago using PA's current hockey facilities.

As the interest and participation in hockey increased over the years, we have sought practice ice time at rinks in Lawrence, North Andover, Lowell, Tewksbury, Reading, Chelmsford, and Salem, N.H. As enrollments continue to grow in hockey and figure skating in the surrounding towns, our ice allotments continue to get cut back year after year at the area rinks. We are currently one of the largest hockey organizations in Massachusetts with nearly 600 children representing 400 families in Andover.

Our growth has been accomplished with no real home rink. Fortunately, Phillips Academy, a good neighbor, has provided ice in their facility. The need for a town rink was minimized with our having use of Phillips' rink.

There is a huge demand for ice time in the Merrimack Valley, particularly in Andover. In addition to the strong growth of the Andover Hockey Association (which now proudly skates 4 girls' teams) the Andover Skating Club has a perpetual waiting list to join. Andover lot for 15 minutes, and not one parking space was available.

We then went to the back end of the parking lot and drove in over the curb to park in a large grassy area as did 14 other cars next to ours, where there was absolutely no obstruction or interference with anything.

On leaving the show we were angered to find a violation notice on our car. What were we supposed to do? Drive back home and forget about our granddaughter? Is this what you would have done?

Oh yes, those other cars, except for one next to ours, were ticketed, as were many more which were parked throughout the lot. Is this the only town or city in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts that gives parking tickets on Sundays?

People of Andover should feel good to have such gifted crime fighters.

Entering — A new entrance road near 254 South Main will enter onto Route 28.

High School has a need for ice. The JV team has virtually no ice time and there is a desperate need for freshmen and girls' teams. These are all-important programs for the children of Andover, and a facility must be available to them.

PA had continued to include us in their plans for their new rink. Anyone who has been to the current ice facility at PA would clearly agree that they should have replaced it many years ago. Phillips is a world class school and should have an ice facility to match. This will clearly be a rink that will benefit our children and grandchildren. Phillips Exeter has twin rinks, and they are a tremendous benefit to the local children.

We realize the concerns that some residents have about traffic but feel those concerns are not founded by solid facts. We urge you to drive by any local operating ice rink at different times to observe that there are actually very few busy hours during the day. Before school, during school, and in the late evening, there is very little impact on traffic. During the traditional hockey season, PA teams will be using the ice during the peak traffic time. The current entrance to the existing rink is just down the street and that seems to have very little impact on traffic now. In addition, the numbers used for projecting traffic did not take into account the traffic already on Route 28 from the existing rink. Phillips' planners have really presented a worst-case traffic scenario.

We commend Phillips Academy for continuing to give the local kids access to their facility. They have hosted meetings to keep interested parties informed of the progress and are doing everything possible to build this the right way.

We have been patiently waiting for years for a decent ice facility in Andover. We encourage the Board of Selectmen, the Town Manager, the Planning Board and the building inspector to do everything possible to help us with a dream, which is on the verge of becoming a reality for our children.

Punishment should fit crime, for graduation

Editor, Townsman:

My heart goes out to the Beliveaus (Letters: "Mistake should not have cost graduation," June 8), and especially to their son, who it seems to me, was unfairly kept from participating in his high school graduation ceremony. I believe that he received a harsh punishment for what was basically a careless mistake.

I would expect that there is some latitude in how our school policies are administered, just as there is in the criminal justice system. If a teenager is brought before the court for some infraction, the judge will take many things, such as prior history, mitigating circumstances, etc., into consideration when meting out a punishment. A high school principal has the same latitude, and in my opinion, MacDonald gave a stiff sentence for a first offense — one that may tarnish this boy's memories of Andover High for his lifetime.

Scott Smith responded to the Beliveaus' letter last week ("Zero" message is the right one by schools,"), supporting the school administration's zero-tolerance policies and saying "They provide young people with a framework to make better choices." I agree with Mr. Smith that kids need clear expectations, but the Beliveau boy did not make a choice in this instance. He did something inadvertently. What he might take away from this experience is sad to think.

Smith also stated that the Beliveaus were looking for some "special privilege" for their son. I think they were just looking for fairness. It was not the fact that their son was "held accountable" that bothered them, it was how he was held accountable.

I am used to thinking of the word "tolerance" in positive terms, and I'd like to think that we can use a little of it in the open-minded and reasonable administration of disciplinary policies within our school system.

therapeutic activity," explains O'Brien, adding that it also teaches life skills through farm-related activities and chores. Richard Donovan, who originally built the farm to breed, raise and train thoroughbred horses began hosting field trips for special needs children in the 1970s.

By 1983, the success of this therapy was evident, and Challenge Unlimited officially offered therapeutic riding to disabled individuals as an incorporated organization.

In 1998, the organization took the program a step further with Ironstone Therapy, a program that combines recreational horse riding with traditional, medically based physical and occupational therapy. Known as hippotherapy, this combination of treatments is based on the premise that the motion an individual experiences when riding a walking horse emulates the natural movements of a person's hips when walking.

Participants of the Ironstone therapy program are referred to the program by doctors and the program employs physical, occupational and speech therapists who work with CU instructors developing medically based exercise plans for each client, says CU.

Today the programs serve 400 individuals every week, and holds volunteer training workshops weekly. According to O'Brien, CU is planning a fundraiser in the fall to continue its climb toward the $600,000 purchase price.

Education

Enjoying real-life experiences, commitment to education

By Dawn Shea

Albert R. Croteau of Andover believes in life-long learning. His recent graduation from Northern Essex Community College's (NECC) paralegal certificate program is testament to this.

So is the fact that he graduated from NECC at the same time as his son, and soon plans to take some other courses with his daughter.

The retired General Electric engineer even says he enrolled in the paralegal program "just for fun."

"I enjoyed (the program) so much it never felt like a burden," responded Croteau, when asked what the most difficult part of the program was.

Croteau, who already holds a bachelor's degree in chemical engineering from Northeastern University, an MBA from New Hampshire College, and an associate's degree in aviation from North Shore Community College, plans to take one more legal course at NECC to earn his associate's in paralegal studies.

"Most people don't take advantage of the community colleges we have in this area," says the high honors graduate, who completed the nine-course program in three years.

"He obviously likes learning," observes Judith Ciampi, coordinator of NECC's paralegal program and one of Croteau's instructors. "(Albert is) a very articulate, well-educated gentleman."

Ciampi got to know Croteau during a 16-week internship class in which students spent one hour a week in a classroom setting while performing 100 hours of legal service for the community.

Croteau interned and continues to volunteer his time at Community Action Inc. in Haverhill, which offers consumer-protection programs, mediation services and legal advice.

According to Ciampi, part of her class involved students sharing such internship experiences with each other. "He had a lot of experiences to share," says Ciampi of Croteau.

Croteau says he enjoyed the real-life experiences that his fellow students and the faculty offered, and appreciates that the insights they offered could not be found in a textbook.

"They bring a lot to the class," he says.

Croteau has seemingly passed on his commitment to education to his children.

His son, Albert B., also graduated from NECC this past

May, with an associate's degree in business administration. The junior Croteau, who graduated with honors, plans to continue his education at the University of Massachusetts and pursue a bachelor's degree in business.

Croteau's daughter, Leigh, is three courses shy of her associate's degree from Cape Cod Community College. She, too, plans to continue her education at a four-year college, says her father.

As for Croteau's next educational adventure, he plans to take some photography courses with his daughter.

"It's a hobby," he says.

Children's Room news: At the library, reading opens frontiers

There are open books, open frontiers and open minds at The Children's Room in the Library this summer.

Children, their families and their caregivers are invited to explore all kinds of frontiers — including the American West — at Memorial Hall Library through the month of July.

Programs for preschool children and school-aged children and their families are offered in a celebration of books and reading.

Some summer highlights will include five story hours a week for various ages, an adventure club called Wagons Ho! for 8- to 11-year-olds, a Wild West Magic Show, and Music of the Old West with Skip Gorman, a musician who will perform in historic cowboy garb.

Many of these programs begin right after the end of school in order to give everyone a head start on the enjoyment of library programs this summer.

Most importantly, all youngsters, including those who are not yet reading on their own, will be encouraged to visit The Children's Room to sign up for the Open Books, Open Frontiers summer reading club, which is an individualized program designed to help maintain and enhance reading skills during the summer months.

Each participant will receive a reading log, a book list, puzzles, games and a certificate of achievement at the end.

Fliers with full details about this and all other Children's Room programs are now available.

Lawyers give two conflicting stories

Kartell: Man with murderous plan or man with no choice?

before the shooting to impress his wife, he wore large, eight-year-old tailored pants to the hospital that night, said McAlary.

"He didn't put these on as a fashion statement. He put them on because he was on a mission," said McAlary. "Because the bagginess of these pants will conceal a weapon."

McAlary noted the pants also had a special, hidden pocket sewn into them to hold a "speed strip" — extra bullets.

"He's never fired this gun in 20 years. What does he need a back-up round of ammunition for?" asked McAlary.

Looking to prove premeditation, McAlary said that two hours after the shooting, Kartell's blood alcohol level was .035.

McAlary suggested that Kartell had tried to find "a little courage in a bottle" before heading over to Holy Family. Kartell then provoked a fight by telling Vajda to leave his wife Suzan Kamn's hospital room, throwing Vajda's jacket into the hall and pushing Vajda.

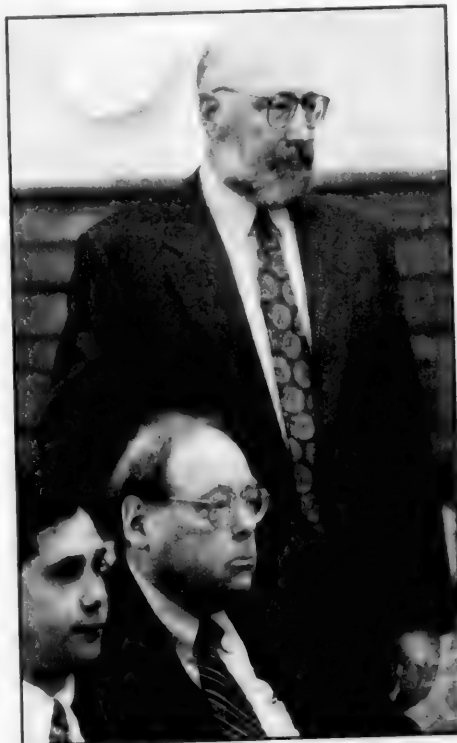

By contrast, in his opening statements, Carney had tried to portray the deceased Vajda as the man with anger issues, referring to his "pent-up rage," and suggesting he was "insulted that this wimp," Kartell, would tell him to leave the room.

He said both shots, the first to Vajda's stomach, and the second to the back of his head, were done in the heat of a struggle.

Pantomiming the numerous blows Kartell allegedly suffered at Vajda's hands, Carney told jurors of the "wind-mill" of punches a near-defenseless Kartell withstood before firing his fatal shots.

"Every person in this country has a right to protect him or herself. What happened that night was a mugging," Carney later added. "Whether that assault takes place in an alley or a hospital room, the law says you have a right to use deadly force to stop it."

McAlary argued there was little medical evidence to support this claim, and noted that no one in the crowded hospital that Kartell worked in and was familiar with heard him call for help.

But while McAlary tried to show a pattern of growing hatred toward Vajda by Kartell, Carney downplayed that Kartell had referred to Vajda by names such as "Super Jew" and "swine" in conversation. He said many people have a name for someone they do not like.

Carney also compared Kartell's statement in the months before the murder that he "could kill" Vajda to an expression such as "I could kill Billy. Did you see the mud that he tracked in on the rug last night?"

While McAlary would later ask jurors to think about who had more to gain by lying, Carney asked the jury to consider if some of the prosecutor's witnesses seemed "defensive and combative" on the stand. Carney accused witnesses of saying something different on the stand than

Safety center parking plan arrested by pleas

By Chris Young

Bowing to objections from Pearson Street residents and businesses, Police Chief Brian J. Pattullo said he no longer plans to make the street one-way during construction of the $12.9 million public safety center behind the present police and fire stations on North Main Street.

Selectman Brian Major says Andover will pursue other options, such as using library spaces for emergency personnel.

Pearson Street, just one hilly block long, connects North Main Street to Railroad Avenue and Essex Street at the railroad tracks. Police had proposed making it one-way for those traveling downhill from Main Street, to open up eight or nine parking spaces for town workers during construction, and to make it safer for construction equipment to get to the site. ("Parking restrictions may be part of safety center job," Townsmen, June 8.)

But earlier this week, Pattullo said Pearson will remain a two-way street.

"We listened to neighbors and their concerns and have decided not to change the traffic pattern on Pearson Street," said Pattullo.

But his main concern, he said, is finding parking spaces for the approximately 35 employees of the police and fire departments, and construction workers.

Girders, metal rods and other construction materials will be stored in several unpaved lots surrounding the station, as well as at the public works department garage off Lewis Street. Construction of the new center will begin in about one month and take two years to complete. The first 18 months will be the most disruptive, according to Safety Officer Robert Cronin.

"One of the selectman said that they weren't interested in finding parking for our employees. But I think it would be poor planning not to consider where they will be parking because of the impact on the neighborhood," said Pattullo.

Business laments

Area business owners vigorously protested the change in traffic patterns, arguing that it would drive away customers inconvenienced by the change and reduced parking.

"I don't understand why they would want to do that," said Sam Ameen, owner of Main Street Mobil. "It would cause more problems than it would help. There is plenty of parking off-site around here."

Jayne M. Madden, owner of Dawg City, a pet store at 38 Pearson St. near the railroad tracks, said a one-way street would be a great imposition for her customers and delivery people who negotiate the narrow street from Railroad Avenue. Dawg City has about 80 to 90 in-and-out customers a day, she said.

Richard Dewhirst, owner of Charles Dewhirst, Edgerley and Bessom Funeral Home at 33 Pearson, said it bothered him that all Pearson Street traffic would be forced to use the dangerous railroad intersection. Funeral processions now go up the hill to North Main Street.

"It scares me to take a funeral procession over the railroad tracks. To make it one way either way would hurt the traffic flow of the entire area. Having Pearson Street traffic go the same way as (nearby one-way) Essex Street crowds everybody onto Brook Street or Lupine Road. It's bad enough that we are going to have to

RR area studied

From the yard where she walks dogs, Dawg City owner Jayne M. Madden has a unique view of the wild and woolly Essex Street and Railroad Avenue neighborhood.

"I have watched strangers heading up Essex Street where they see the one-way sign, and back down and go up Brook Street, confused. I have watched traffic sit for six minutes at Dundee Park waiting to get out," said Madden, whose business fronts Pearson Street.

"God forbid there is a train coming. The railroad tracks, Dundee Park, Essex Street (and) Lupine Road all come together here. The escape route is Pearson Street. The town should do a traffic study of this whole area," she said.

Former Planning Board member Hooks Johnston promoted such a study five years ago when he was on the board. He saw improving the Dundee Park area as the best way for the downtown to expand.

Now, Town Planner Steven Colyer says planning has finally started. "Town Meeting two years ago voted to study the Essex Street corridor, from St. Augustine Church to Red Spring Road to see how they work," he said.

The town hired the engineering firm of VHB, which has completed the first part of the study,

Kartell closing arguments

they had said either immediately following the shooting, or during earlier statements.

Kartell's story never changed, he said.

In response, McAlary began his closing statements by trying to dismiss the idea that there was any kind of conspiracy by the prosecution. If anything, hospital workers would probably bend the truth in favor of Kartell, who worked at the hospital, he said.

"Using your common sense, who had the most to gain by not telling the truth?" asked McAlary. "If they were going to be biased toward anyone, why would they not be biased toward him?"

"They came forward to see that justice is done," he said.

McAlary also used several minutes of his closing to question this contention that Kartell had no choice but to fire the weapon.

While Carney had asked during his closing statement, "What makes someone put a 60-year-old man on the floor and just keep punching him?" McAlary told jurors that according to Kartell's driver's license, Kartell was only three years older and three inches shorter than Vajda. At one point during the past few years, Kartell weighed more than Vajda, said McAlary.

McAlary asked jurors why there was no evidence of a punch to the back of the head if Kartell had been "sucker-punched," as the defense claimed. He asked why there weren't more than six bruises on Kartell's body if he had suffered the type of beating claimed.

"Mr. Carney was very dramatic about these punches, (saying) they were like a windmill. Where was the evidence of this? What do the medical records have to gain? The defendant has a great deal to gain," he said.

McAlary also asked whether there was any evidence that Kartell's head had been bounced "like a basketball" as Kartell had claimed when he testified the previous week. A beating like that would leave some abrasion, said McAlary.

McAlary tried to discredit the suggestion that Kartell and Vajda continued struggling after Kartell fired his first shot into Vajda's stomach. The prosecutor reminded jurors that a doctor had described the damage to the aorta caused by the first shot as being like a water-main break.

If Vajda was still wrestling and punching Kartell after this first shot, as the defense claimed, Kartell's clothing would have been stained, he said.

"Where is this blood of this vicious attacker on this shirt?" asked McAlary, displaying to the jury the shirt Kartell wore that day. "There isn't any."

groundhog outside was staring at them, and they thought it might be sick. An animal-control officer checked out the scene and said the woodchuck was only eating.

At 12:19 p.m., a school bus driver entered the police station to report that a male on the corner of Essex Street and Gradall Lane threw a piece of lumber at him, because he was driving too fast.

At 5:13 p.m., a Chandler Street resident reported a young person going house to house asking for money so he can go to college. An officer spoke with a person who said he was with a group selling books for college. He was told to register with the police department. Moments later, another call came in from Osgood Street, where a resident said another person claiming to be a neighbor's son was trying to sell magazines for college. She knows all her neighbors and this was not a son of one of them, she said. An officer transported the party to a gas station because they were not registered.

Thursday, June 15 — At 3:37 p.m., a Pine Street caller reported a male in his 40s wearing red socks, shorts, a beige shirt and white cap yelling at people driving by. She recalled to say the man hit a person on a bike with a watering can.

At 5:44 p.m., a Chandler Road resident reported a youth at her door who claimed he was a student at Delaware University, and said he was trying to sell magazines for points. The group the youth was with was not registered with the police, and an officer told him to stop soliciting.

Friday, June 16 — At 2:46 p.m., lifeguards at Pumps Pond reported catching a three- to four-foot snake, "and they don't know if it is deadly." An officer did not believe it was deadly, and reported the snake would be in a large trash can until Sunday, when the animal control officer should be able to look at it.

At 7:18 p.m., a restraining order was served to a man at the police station.

At 7:29 p.m., a restraining order was served to an Andover woman.

At 10:27 p.m., a group of teens came into the station to report they had just been assaulted by another group of teens at a nearby restaurant.

At 11:12 p.m., a caller reported that a bike was left near a fence by West Middle School. The bike was brought to the station.

Saturday, June 17 — At 9:19 p.m., a woman reported a suspicious vehicle going up and down the street, with a person who kept getting out and going up to houses. Police reported a pizza delivery person.

Sunday, June 18 — At 12:15 p.m., a Bellevue Road resident came to the station to report the thefts, from her home, of a sign and a cellular phone on two separate occasions.

At 5:12 p.m., environmental police were called for a moose on the loose on Elm Street. At 10:04 p.m., a moose was reported in the area of Salem Street and Route 125.

put up with the noise and dust of construction," he said.

Customers of Barbara O'Neill Kennedy's Molly Kate Clothing and Gifts and Angel Babies Doll Shop at 37-39 Pearson now park in front of the store. The police department's original plan would have given her spaces to police department employees.

"But people don't need to come here. People tend to avoid unpleasant situations. I have a lot of pregnant ladies and grandmothers and they are not going to walk a country mile to get here," Kennedy said.

Dewhurst told the selectmen that the town should hire a professional traffic consultant to plan routes that would be least disruptive for all.

But Pattullo said that his department and town planners can do it better.

"We go to the same schools as the traffic engineers. We know the town and the traffic problems better than anybody. We have taken into consideration the impact this project will have on Stevens Street and Elm Square and Central Street. Police Safety Officer Bob Cronin does all the site-planning reviews for projects all over town. When they hire a traffic consultant, the first thing he does is say, 'Chief, give us your statistics,'" Pattullo said.

"We will follow the wishes of neighbors and leave Pearson Street the way that it is," he said. "But I think they are being short-sighted. We did not make a quick decision. We've been working on this for several months and have considered traffic from the library, the funeral home, the businesses on Pearson and Essex streets and Railroad Avenue, but we will leave it the way it is and deal with problems as they come."

Pain of the train

Many of the people interviewed also mentioned the growing number of commuters who park their cars on neighborhood streets while they take the MBTA train into Boston as an issue.

"They tell us that when they are running late, it is still cheaper to park in our parking lot all day (at a two-hour meter) and get towed than it is to drive and park in Boston," Pattullo said. "It's cheaper to pay the $35 tow fee."

RR studies

pointing out the hot spots. "The next phase is to point out the improvements," Colyer said.

Two independent studies of the area are also about to begin.

Merrimack Valley Regional Transit Authority will study the impact of the MBTA train station on the surrounding neighborhood. In the fall, students from MIT's Division of Urban Studies and Planning will examine the triangle bounded by Essex and Main streets and the Shawsheen River.

"They'll look at how it connects to downtown. There will be teams of graduate students working with their professors. Chestnut Hill and Burlington have used the students very successfully," Colyer said. "They bring fresh eyes to the problem."

The complex history of Phillips Academy's physical campus traces the campuses of four distinct institutions that have occupied Andover's Academy Hill: Phillips Academy, the Andover Theological Seminary, the Teachers' Seminary, and Abbot Academy. These four institutions developed separate facilities that sometimes overlapped and ultimately, one by one, they were joined into the 500-acre campus that exists today. The exhibition encourages an

Listen 99 scores with video judges

Listen 99: "Does the Media Affect Teenage Behavior?" won first place in the Talk Show Informational non-Professional category in the national Hometown Video Awards Festival 2000, which is sponsored by the Alliance for Community Media in Washington, D.C.

Hosted and produced by former Andover High School senior Emily Riemer, and produced by Andover High's television classes with Joe Spanos and Harry J. Durso, Listen 99 featured guests Hubert Jessup, media literacy director from the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences; Essex County District Attorney Kevin Burke; Steve Cooper, anchor reporter from Channel 9 and now with Channel 7; Lauren Beckham Falcone, the teen reporter from the Boston Herald; and Peggy Cain, a guidance counselor from Andover High School. The show dealt with whether what teens see in the media has a direct affect on their behavior.

The national judges had high scores for the show and one judge gave the show a perfect score. Emily Riemer, currently a student at Ithaca College studying communications, received great praise from the judges for her professional hosting ability. The award will be announced at the Alliance for Community Media International Conference, which will be held in July in Tucson, Ariz. The Alliance is a non-profit national organization that promotes excellence in public access television. Listen 99 also won an award at the Mt. Wachusett New England High School video competition this year.

Your Dental HEALTH

by Richard D. Hopgood, D.M.D., F.A.G.D.

THE ROOT OF THE SOLUTION

Dental implants offer patients with missing teeth the most natural replacement option. The reason that dental implants look, feel, and function so naturally is that the titanium implant provides a stable foundation upon which substitute teeth can be attached. When it was first discovered that pure titanium could fuse with bone under the right conditions, its application as an artificial root became clearly evident. The first step in evaluating if dental implants are right for you is for the dentist to record a thorough medical and dental history. Diagnostic procedures such as study casts, x-rays, tissue examinations, and CAT scans need to be evaluated. If there is insufficient bone to support the implant, it will limit overall success and cosmetic results.

Do you avoid smiling, laughing aloud, or eating in public because a space left by missing teeth may show or your dentures may slip? If so, dental implants may improve the way you feel about your teeth. At 295 Lowell Street (Rt 133, with easy access off Rt 93), we'd be happy to discuss implants with you to see if this dental restoration that looks and feels as though it's really a part of your mouth is right for you. Call us at 475-2431 for an appointment.

P.S. While dental implants can last indefinitely, the replacement teeth require special attention.

No lifeguard shortage as Poms Pond opens

By Judy Wakefield

Summer 2000 is splashing down with a well-publicized lifeguard shortage for many beaches around the state.

But Poms Pond is not among them.

Thirteen lifeguards have been hired for Poms, which opens for the season this Saturday, June 24.

A pay increase helped to keep lifeguards, such as Katya Yerozolimsky, 18, of Andover, who worked at Poms last year and came back because of the raise.

Last year, lifeguards earned less than $6 an hour, while this year's crew is earning $7.50 an hour, thanks to an across-the-board pay hike for all town employees.

"I'm making more money than last year, so I came back," said Yerozolimsky, a college student who attends UMass Amherst.

The pay was also enough to attract Jim Delaney, 19, of Andover, who spent last summer cleaning oil burners.

"I wanted a change of pace," said the Dickinson College student, who took his lifeguard certification course in college.

Like Yerozolimsky and Delaney, most of the lifeguards are college students who typically head back to their campuses a week before the pond closes on Aug. 27. But there are plenty of guards to go around, according to Kim Stamas, recreation coordinator.

this year, DCS offered a lifeguard certification course. It was held this week and attracted 15 swimmers, including some who are not in college. Those lifeguards will staff the pond when the summer winds down.

Birds of prey on display at Harold Parker

Harold Parker State Forest is hosting a demonstration on birds of prey on Saturday, June 24 from 2 to 3 p.m.

Julie Collier of Wingmasters in Springfield, a respected and experienced large bird handler, will give a presentation with live birds of prey, including a hawk, a falcon, two owls, and a golden eagle. The event takes place at Stearns Pond, near the edge of the pond.

Collier has been keeping birds for the purposes of rehabilitation for many years. This will be an educational program, although it may not be appropriate for small children. Visitors are reminded that the birds are quite sensitive and should not be subjected to loud noises or quick movements.

Meet at Harold Parker headquarters, Middleton Road, North Andover. There will be signs to guide visitors to the event location.

For more information, call Barbara Buls, interpreter at the forest, at 475-7972.

Flag Day was celebrated at Cuddle Care, 511 S. Main St. All children participated in the outside ceremony. The highlight was Allan Livingston playing Scottish tunes on his bagpipe. He is shown here with his children, Alec and Jessie Livingston.

The drumming was lively at the home of Julie and Tom Childs recently where local poet and storyteller, Jane Gossard, shared her "Drumcalling" with the Christ Church Everyday People Youth Group. Described as a powerful story of love and self-discovery, "Drumcalling" tells how Gossard (seated, third from left, shown surrounded by the Everyday People from Christ Church) found her calling to play the African djembe drum. People of all ages have enjoyed the story and the sound of her drum, organizers said. Children especially enjoy playing the many drums and instruments that she brings with her. Gossard has performed at Brother Blue's in Cambridge, the Three Apples Storytelling Festival in Harvard, and locally at the Andover Bookstore, and at schools and churches in Andover, Lawrence, and Lowell.

Raymond G. Reed, Sr., 89, formerly of Andover and Meredith, N.H., died Saturday, June 17 in Fort Myers, Fla.

He was the owner of Reed's Turkey Farm, formerly located at 128 Dascomb Road.

Mr. Reed graduated from Essex Agricultural School in the days when Andover students walked from Argilla Road to "Wilson's Corner," near Merrimack College and were then transported to school.

Mr. Reed received acknowledgment for his work in developing the broad-breasted white Holland turkey,

A lifelong friendship developed between the Reeds and Claire and Ray Rischer. Mr. Reed gave several young poults to the Rischers who went on to develop a farm in Methuen. In addition, many young men from Andover had their first job with Ray Reed at his turkey farm.

The Reeds retired to New Hampshire and Florida, enjoying their family, friends, skiing, and many other small ventures.

He was the widower of Mary T. Rennie and Elizabeth Rivers. Family members include his son and his wife, Raymond G. and Nancy (White) Reed of Johns Island, S.C.; daughter-in-law, Moira Reed Conrad of Andover; sister-in-law Viola C. Reed of Andover; seven grandchildren; nine great-grandchildren; and several nieces and nephews.

He was the father of the late George Conrad and the brother of the late Albert Reed and Fredrick Reed of Andover.

Burial will be held at Spring Grove Cemetery at a later date.

Memorial contributions may be made to Brigham and Women's Hospital, Friends of Hematology Division, 75 Francis St., Boston, MA 02115; or to the charity of one's choice.

All of Harvard Club can hear 'Two Minds' author

Dr. Frederic Schiffer, Harvard Clinical Instructor in Psychiatry, will be the featured speaker at the annual Harvard Club of Andover meeting at 6 p.m. on Monday, June 26 at Wyndham Andover.

Schiffer will discuss his book, Of Two Minds: The Science of Dual-Brain Psychology, which explores his theory that the brain has two minds, one more emotionally mature than the other.

According to Schiffer, when one mind is more dominant than the other, a patient may become anxious or calm, depending upon the side stimulated.

He also invented "lateralizing glasses," an aid in activating the mature side of the brain during talk therapy. Schiffer has been nominated for the Grawmeyer Award in psychology for this revolutionary theory.

Company looks to move manufacturing jobs

Layoffs possible at Andover's Agilent

By Rebecca Piro

Up to 600 manufacturing jobs are in question at the Agilent Technologies plant on Minuteman Road in Andover, according to the company's latest strategic move for higher competition.

The new corporate plan calls for the consolidation of Agilent's 41 locations world-wide into between six and ten "megafactories," the first of which will be located in Singapore. Location of the other sites has not yet been determined.

Agilent, which up until the beginning of this June was part of Hewlett-Packard, is a $9 billion company with 43,000 employees that manufactures health-care equipment. The Andover plant employs approximately 2,000 workers, 600 of whom are in manufacturing.

"Agilent has 41 locations right now, and that means lots of complexity and not very good customer service," said spokesperson Dianne Prendible. "It's not a very good business model."

A facility in Singapore will provide lower-cost manufacturing and "good local talent" in the local labor force, she added. In addition, Agilent will be joining much of its competition in the Eastern hemisphere.

It has not yet been decided which products will be transferred to Singapore for production, said Prendible. Until that is determined, Agilent officials say they won't know which jobs and how many employees will be affected. Out of the 600 manufacturing jobs in question, "it won't be zero and it won't be 600," said Prendible. "We don't know yet what the net is going to be."

No Andover employees will be affected for at least nine to twelve months, while Agilent searches for a production site in Singapore.

"The overall transition will take at least two to three years," Prendible said.

The company has not yet decided whether severance pay or other plans will be offered employees left without positions after the transition. However, while Agilent goes ahead with their plans for creating megafactories, the Andover plant has its own goals for increased business, said Prendible. She says these plans could mean new manufacturing positions for employees eliminated after the Singapore move.

Andover confectioner says ta-ta to toffee

By Michelle Eld

It started out as a joke.

Every year, Lucy Bernardin would bring her homemade English Toffee to holiday parties, where friends would hoard the tasty confection, urging her to sell it for profit. It got to the point where she'd have to bring not only a batch to serve guests, but also bring a batch for the host. And whenever she'd arrive at a get-together, everyone expected her to have toffees in hand.

After a few years of this, Bernardin decided to put her talents to work and opened Victorian Treats in April of 1993 in a small 7-by-9 room at 60 Main St. Now, after seven years and several changes within the structure of the business, she'll be closing her doors at the end of July.

"I was ready for a change," said Bernardin.

She sold her wholesale business to Mantash International, owned by Hans and Tracey van Putten of the Netherlands. The couple owns Carolyn's Gourmet in West Concord, which manufactures and sells wholesale and retail specialty products such as flavored nuts and cookies.

"It (the buyout) really ended up in my lap by coincidence," said van Putten. He got a call from his broker, who thought the toffees would make a nice addition to Carolyn's Gourmet, which already sold flavored pecans, walnuts and peanuts, along with items such as candles, napkins, magazines and gift baskets.

Now, adding toffee to the mix will provide a greater assortment for his customers and brokers to choose from, said van Putten.

Her treat — Lucy Bernardin's candies are now the property of Hans van Putten's Mantash International.

According to van Putten, nuts make up five to six percent of the snack market, while candy and chocolates make up 28 percent. Of that 28 percent, chocolate makes up 50 to 63 percent.

Toffees — a caramel/chocolate/nut confection — will attract a larger segment of Carolyn's Gourmet's business, selling especially well in the first half of the year for holidays such as Valentine's Day, Easter, Mother's Day and Father's Day, according to van Putten.

Van Putten and his wife have owned Carolyn's Gourmet for almost two years now, selling retail through a small factory outlet in West Concord, as well as through wholesale across the country.

In the beginning

It's hard to believe the homemade toffees got their start in a tiny ATM room in Andover, which is where Bernardin first opened her doors. At the time, she was working 40 hours a week in Boston and selling her toffees just a couple of days a week.

"It kind of blew my mind, where I started," Bernardin remembers.

As the business grew, Bernardin moved to a larger, Park Street location in 1995 and expanded the retail shop, adding Victorian gifts, jewelry and greeting cards. At the same time she started to wholesale her English Toffee across the country. Locally, her product can be found at places such as the Blue Cow in Andover and Butcher Boy and The Vineyard in North Andover.

In 1997, she closed down the retail shop to concentrate solely on the wholesale aspect, operating a small production plant on Andover Street. She introduced two new flavors after that: Coffee Toffee, flavored with espresso and coffee, and New England Toffee,

Attorney Jay D. Raxenberg

Attorney Jay D. Raxenberg

Attorney Jay Raxenberg is a general practice attorney, specializing in domestic relations. The areas of family law in which he concentrates include divorce, custody, restraining orders, child support, alimony, visitation, abuse and protection orders, prenuptial agreements, paternity, Department of Revenue grievances, modifications and grandparents' visitation.

Attorney Raxenberg strives to achieve the three A's in his practice: being affable, being accommodating and applying his ability and experience to best serve his clients' needs. He states, "It is important for me to protect my clients, thus enabling them to protect their loved ones. During our initial consultation I try to ease the fear and anxiety of a difficult situation by fully informing my clients of the process so they know what to expect. For instance, going through a divorce is very stressful and one of my roles as attorney is to make my client feel as comfortable as possible. I tell all my present and potential clients that I will accommodate their schedules by making myself available on weekends and evenings and that they can expect their telephone calls to be returned by the end of the day. One of the most frequent complaints attorneys receive is that telephone calls are not returned. It is important for me that my clients are confident and secure and that when they need to speak with me I will be available."

Attorney Raxenberg is also of counsel to the law firm of Boudreau, Mitchell & Davis, who specialize in bankruptcy law.

Attorney Raxenberg's office is conveniently located at 77 Main Street in downtown Andover. He serves clients in Essex, Middlesex, Suffolk and Norfolk counties. Look for his display advertisement in the Bell Atlantic Yellow Pages in June 2000 and visit his upcoming web site at www.jdrlaw.com. Clients can reach him in several ways: telephone (978) 475-1515, toll free (877) 404-2889 and Fax (978) 475-1184. Breakfast focus: technology

The Family Service Employee Assistance Program (EAP) held its spring Corporate Breakfast on Tuesday, June 6 at the Wyndham Andover Hotel. Business professionals from throughout the Merrimack Valley attended the event.

"The breakfast is designed to be an educational and networking opportunity for EAP clients, human resource, and management professionals," said Lenny DeBenedictis, Family Service EAP director. "Our goal is to provide the attendees with new insight on a timely topic that will assist them in their workplace."

The topic of the session was electronic communication.

Agilent race for Max Schloss Foundation

Just two weeks after its official creation as an independent company, Agilent Technologies launched what it calls an "aggressive worldwide community relations campaign," featuring local Agilent employees running and walking in a company-sponsored road race to benefit the Max Schloss Foundation. The road race went through the streets of Andover last weekend.

"It is not just about giving some time, it's about making a difference," said Steve Ruscowski, senior vice president and general manager, Healthcare Solutions Group. "This race for Max is a great opportunity to showcase the commitment we have to our community."

At age 11 months, Max Schloss was diagnosed with Tay-Sachs disease. Max's parents, Cynthia and David Schloss, heard the six most devastating words any parent could ever hear, "no hope, no treatment, no cure."

Max died one week prior to his second birthday. The Schlosses promised their little boy that his short life would have a lasting and positive legacy and that they would strive to protect other families from suffering similar tragedies. From that promise came the Max Schloss Foundation for Pediatric Disease. Money raised from the race will go to this foundation. Lloyd Stern, Max's uncle, works at Agilent Technologies in Andover.

flavored with real sweetened, dried Cape Cod cranberries.

The toffee is hand-made in small batches and has a three-month shelf life when stored in a cool, dry place, according to Bernardin.

Now, she feels it's time to move on. When Hans van Putten contacted her to say he was interested in acquiring her business, she jumped on the opportunity. It was meant to be, she said, and the timing was perfect.

She plans to take the summer off to do a little kayaking and relaxing before looking for a new venture. Owning her own business was a ride she'll never forget, though.

"The experience has been incredible," she said.

Post 8 gets off to a running start

By Rick Harrison

Strong pitching performances by Rich Sheldon, Jason White and Paul Wysocki helped the Andover Post 8 American Legion baseball team to a 3-1 start in recent season-opening Essex County League Zone 8 action.

Playing four games in four days to launch the summer, Andover defeated Winthrop (9-5), East Boston (4-3) and Gloucester (5-3) while also dropping a 4-2 decision to Danvers.

Sheldon tossed a complete-game three-hitter against defending state league champ Gloucester. White hurled six strong innings versus Winthrop, and Wysocki threw 3 2/3 innings of no-hit relief to seal the win over East Boston.

"Once again we have a young team — with only three 18-year-olds," said head coach Joe Iarrobino.

"Usually we have almost six weeks to play our schedule — but this year everything is crammed into a month and two days.

"If our pitchers were completely healthy I'd be very confident. But we have some health concerns on the mound."

Lefthander Kevin Shepard, while he can play the field and bat with no problems, has been unable to pitch since midway through the high school season. He may be lost for the entire summer.

Lefthander Sheldon, although he pitched very well against East Boston, still has to take it slow after a hip and thigh injury (nerve damage) suffered during a pick-up football game several months ago. He missed most of the high school season.

"The first four games were encouraging," said Iarrobino. "We played well defensively and had some timely hits. But with all the games crammed into a short time period it will depend on how well the pitching holds up."

Schedule

Post 8 returned to action last night at home against Methuen, and this weekend Andover hosts Revere on Saturday at Peter Aumais Park (5 p.m.) before traveling to Swampscott on Sunday afternoon (1 p.m.).

Monday evening the locals are at Beverly (6 p.m.), and the busy schedule continues on Wednesday night with the third of five straight road games versus Lynn Gautreau at Fraser Field (6 p.m.).

The schedule is more favorable towards the end with the final five games, and six of the last seven, at Aumais Park.

Assistant coaches

In addition to head man Iarrobino, Post 8 will be coached by team alumni Ben Gibson and Keith Grant as well as former Andover High pitching standout Roger White.

Andover 5 Gloucester 3

Gloucester has five starters back from last year's Massachusetts state championship team, but Post 3 had trouble solving the serves of Rich Sheldon.

In addition to holding Gloucester to three hits and only one earned run, Sheldon struck out 11 and walked just three.

"Rich had excellent control," said Iarrobino. "He threw a lot of breaking balls and consistently hit the inside and outside corners."

Trailing 1-0 and 2-1 early, Post 8 took a 3-2 lead in the fourth when Phillips Academy sophomore Andy Salini drew a two-out walk and Jeff Volinski hammered a two-run homer over the left field fence at Aumais Park.

"It was a legitimate shot that probably traveled about 380 feet," said Iarrobino.

Gloucester nicked Sheldon for the tying run in the top of the fifth, and after Andover batted there was a brief rain delay.

In the bottom of the sixth the locals scored the go-ahead and insurance runs.

Dave Powers singled to right-center, Sean Lawton laid down a bunt on the wet grass and beat the throw, and Salini walked to load the bases with no outs.

Volinski and Chris Hanlon followed with consecutive sacrifice flies to center and right field.

Volinski also plated the first Post 8 run in the second inning on an infield out to second base, after Salini ripped a one-out double and moved to third on a wild pitch.

Danny Hughes, almost fully recovered from a hamstring pull that sidelined him late in the high school season, and Chris Hanlon added a single each as Post 8 made the most of its six safeties.

Defensive standouts were middle infielders Hanlon at shortstop and Chris Caverly at second base.

Andover 4 East Boston 3

Visiting Post 8 jumped to a 3-0 lead in the top of the first inning, and later broke a 3-3 tie with a run in the fifth inning under the lights at Noyes Field in East Boston.

Big righthander Paul Wysocki (1-0) relieved starter Andy Salini in the fourth and pitched 3 2/3 innings of no-hit, shutout relief. He fanned four and walked one in his first competitive pitching appearance since last summer.

Salini yielded four hits and whiffed five in his 3 1/3 inning stint as the starter.

In the Andover first, leadoff batter Danny Hughes walked and scored on Kevin Shepard's double to right field. Worcester Academy junior Josh Topp singled to center, advancing Shepard to third, and Sean Lawton followed with a sac-fly. Salini then rescued Topp with a triple to make it 3-0.

East Boston Post 30 scored a run in the bottom of the first and tied the game 3-3 with two more in the fourth.

The winning run crossed in the fifth when Chris Caverly and Hughes drilled back-to-back one-out singles before Topp's infield out chased home Caverly.

Post 30 threatened in the bottom of the seventh, putting runners at second and third with one out after a walk and two-base throwing error. Wysocki escaped with a strike-out and game-ending flyout to centerfielder Hughes.

Shepard led the seven-hit Andover attack with a double and single.

Defensively, catcher Topp threw out two runners on the basepaths and Hughes made two fine running catches.

Danvers 4 Andover 2

Danvers Post 180 is comprised primarily of players from the Danvers High team that won 23 straight games this spring before being upset by Masconomet Regional in the Division 2 North Tournament quarterfinals.

All the scoring came in the sixth inning of this game under the lights at Twi Field in Danvers.

Lefthander Jeff Volinski pitched well in defeat, but a grand slam on a two-out, 3-2 pitch in the bottom of the sixth was the difference.

Post 8 broke the scoreless tie with two runs in the top of the sixth. Dave Powers singled and Andy Salini drove a long two-run homer (first of season) over the fence in right-center.

But two walks and a single loaded the bases for Pingree School Player-of-the-Year Andy Yeager, a 6'5" first baseman who picked on a low fast-ball and hammered it over the fence for all the Danvers runs in the bottom half of the stanza.

Julie Wadland, 12, who plays for the Mets, accomplished a first in the history of Andover Little League on June 16. Leading off the bottom of the first inning against the Pirates in the last game of the season, Julie hit the first pitch over the center field fence at Deyermund (Chandler) field to become the first girl to do so.

Julie added two more doubles in a 16-15 win by the Mets. She also pitched the first three innings giving her team a 9-2 lead. Julie's home run game came on the heels of a game the night before against the Braves, during which she made two key defensive plays, one a diving, head-first catch with the bases loaded to help preserve a Mets 4-2 win.

Andover High varsity baseball team leading hitter Kevin Shepard, who finished with a .400 season average, shows perfect form as he strides into the ball with his head down and his bat level during a recent game.

The Andover High varsity baseball team hosted the inaugural Showcase Tournament early in the season at Peter Aumais Park, and selected to the All-Tourney Team after games against New Bedford and Brockton were (from left) seniors Sean Lawton, Dave Powers and Andy Bellistri.

Warrior Summer Baseball
School in session Monday

The seventh annual Andover Warrior Summer Baseball School will be held in three different sessions, beginning next Monday, June 26, at Andover West Middle School.

The three sessions will run June 26-30, July 10-14 and July 17-21.

Daily sessions, for youngsters ages 7-15 years, will run from 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the school.

The program, which is open to all area ballplayers who meet the age requirements, is run by the Andover High varsity coaching staff along with past and present AHS players.

The fundamentals of hitting, bunting, fielding, throwing, catching, baserunning and position play will be stressed.

Campers will be grouped by age and there will be drill stations, individual player evaluations, daily games, awards and T-shirts.

For further information contact Ken Maglio at 978-623-8709.

Any former player, family member or friend having any information about Andover High, Punchard High or Punchard Free School football or baseball teams, please send it to or contact Ken Maglio, West Middle School, 70 Shaw-shen Road, Andover, 01810.

The telephone number is 623-8709.

Maglio, head varsity coach of both sports at AHS, is looking for pictures, original or copied newspaper clippings, statistics, records, names of outstanding players or anything else that might help in researching the programs.

This column, compiled from information supplied by the colleges or by friends and relatives of the student-athletes, youth standouts and coaches involved, is published periodically in the Townsman. Tom McLaughlin, the all-time leading scorer in Andover High basketball history, recently led the Boston Amateur Basketball Club to victory in the 2000 BABC Shootout.

McLaughlin, a 6'4" shooting guard who has scored 1,564 points in three years at AHS including a single-season school-record 650 last winter, was named to the Shootout All-Tournament Team, after Boston defeated New York in the championship game.

His key rebound of a New York miss, with four seconds left and Boston ahead by one point in the title game, secured a 90-87 BABC victory.

McLaughlin, who will be a senior at Andover High in the fall, has an excellent shot at scoring 2,000 career points before taking his considerable talents to college in 2001.

Boston College, Ohio State and UMass. are some of the schools who have already expressed an interest in the AHS star, whose father played at UMass. with Julius Irving.

Andover High senior All-Conference football players Mike Giles and Pat Murnane have been selected for the 21st annual Shriners High School All-Star Football Classic.

The Classic will be played tomorrow night at Boston University's Nickerson Field.

The game includes about 90 top senior players from throughout Massachusetts. Giles and Murnane will play for the North team against the South.

Proceeds from the game go to support hundreds of girls and boys receiving treatment free of charge at the Shriners Hospitals for Children across the country.

Giles, a 5'11", 183-pound running-back/linebacker headed for Dartmouth College, finished last season with a team-high 14 touchdowns, 84 points and over 700 yards rushing for Andover.

For his AHS career, Giles had 132 points and over 1,000 yards rushing.

Murnane, a 6'2", 201-pound tight end/defensive back who will attend the University of Maine next fall, caught six TD passes last fall and had 13 scoring receptions and more than 50 total catches for his AHS career.

Abigail Harris of Andover, a senior political science major at Union College in New York and a Phillips Academy graduate, won the Robert Ridings Award as the school's Outstanding Senior Female Athlete.

Attitude, ability, participation and achievement in intercollegiate sports are the primary criteria for the award.

Harris was a four-year starter in both soccer and lacrosse, leading both teams to their first championship in New York State Women's Collegiate Athletic Association post-season tournaments

(the first state titles in the 26-year history of women's athletics at Union).

Harris has been honored as an Upstate Collegiate Athletic Association All-Conference first-team selection, a Division 3 All-American and as a NYSWCAA All-Tournament Team selection in both sports.

She was also named the NYSWCAA Most Valuable Player in lacrosse.

A midfielder in soccer, Harris finished with 24 goals and 22 assists which is second on Union's all-time scoring list.

In lacrosse, her 203 career points lead the school's all-time list. She is the first and only Union player to surpass 200 points.

Her 141 goals rank second to Lauren Pastor's 148 on the school list and the 62 assists are a record.

Harris set the Union single-season goalscoring mark with 53 as a junior (the previous high was 47).

This spring she had 43 goals and 65 points, including 11 goals and 20 points in three playoff games as Union knocked off the top two seeds on the way to the title.

The soccer team had a won-lost-tied record of 49-16-4, and the lacrosse squad was 39-24 during her career.

Harris led both Union teams to Upstate Collegiate Athletic Association championships during her junior year (1998-'99), and helped both squads qualify for their first-ever NCAA Division 3 playoff (soccer last fall and lacrosse in the spring of 1999).

She was a captain of both teams this school year.

Rudy Morando of Andover recently completed his senior season as a member of the Northeastern University men's track and field team.

Morando, primarily a thrower, had an impressive second-place finish in the javelin at the America East Championship Meet. He went on to place 11th in the event at the New England Championships where NU finished second in the team standings.

Brenna O'Connor of Andover, a sophomore at Emory University in Atlanta, Ga., earned a letter on the women's swim and dive team for the 2000 season.

O'Connor, a freestyler, helped the Eagles to a 7-2 dual meet record, the University Athletic Association championship for the second straight year, and a seventh place finish at the NCAA Division 3 National Championships.

Matthew Brian Bloom and Robert Mazza of Andover were recently presented varsity football letters at the Cushing Academy athletic awards assembly.

Nate Efinger of Andover, a junior at Governor Dummer Academy in Byfield, was recently honored at the school's spring awards banquet for his track and field prowess.

Efinger was named MVP in boys track after winning a pair of New England Division 3 titles in the triple jump and hurdles.

Deja vu for Oppenheim, Shaffer

By Rick Harrison

Andover's Rob Oppenheim is off to another fast start on the golf links this summer.

Tuesday night the Rollins College junior-to-be was tied for 18th place, just five strokes off the lead, after two rounds of the 91st Massachusetts Open Championship at the Country Club of Pittsfield.

Oppenheim fired an opening round 73 and followed that with a one-under 69 for a 142 total.

The 20-year-old Indian Ridge Country Club member, who easily survived the cut which came at 147, played the final round yesterday (after Townsmans presstime).

Oppenheim also played well in last year's Mass. Open and highlighted his summer of 1999 by qualifying for the U.S. Amateur Championships and reaching the match play Round-of-16 at fabled Pebble Beach in California.

Another standout amateur golfer from Andover, Northwestern University's Dave Shaffer, was doing even better at the Mass. Open after 36 holes.

Shaffer, who like Oppenheim was an Andover High No. 1 player and All-Scholastic, was only four shots off the lead after shooting rounds of 71 and 70 for 141.

Shaffer is also representing Indian Ridge CC, as is John Gilmartin, who shared the first round lead before slipping slightly for a 70-73-143 total.

Oppenheim is also doing very well in another area event, the 75th Lowell City Tournament which concludes with its third and final round today at Vesper Country Club in Tyngsboro.

After the first two rounds, played last weekend, Oppenheim was tied for second place just three strokes behind leader Marc Chandonnet of Dracut and Mt. Pleasant Golf Club in Lowell.

Oppenheim was at three-over 147 following rounds of 74 and 73 at Long Meadow Golf Club and Mt. Pleasant.

For this tournament Oppenheim is playing out of Long Meadow in Lowell where he also holds a membership.

Last year in the Lowell tourney, Oppenheim had a healthy lead after two rounds but could not make his tee time for the final round because it conflicted with the final round of the Mass. Open.

Oppenheim, faced with a difficult decision, decided to play in the Mass. Open.

Because of his dilemma, Lowell City Tournament officials broke a longstanding tradition and moved their final round from Wednesday to Thursday to avoid this same conflict.

Oppenheim tees off in the final threesome today at 2 p.m. at Vesper.

Also making news on local links was Andover's 10-year-old Jaclyn Sweeney.

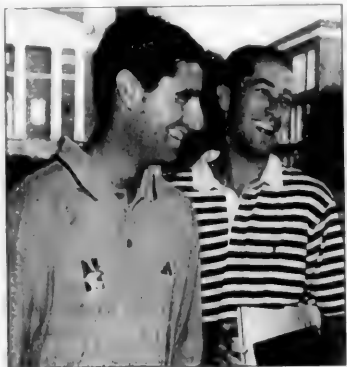

Like Oppenheim she is a member of both Indian Ridge and Long Meadow, and last week she shot a 94 at Long Meadow to qualify for the second annual Lowell Women's City Tournament.

That one-day, 18-hole tourney will be played on Friday, July 14 beginning at 12:30 p.m. at Long Meadow (located off Rte. 133 on the Lowell-Tewksbury line).

Last year Sweeney, as a 9-year-old, won the 12-and-under division of the Junior Club Championship at Indian Ridge.

"She was matched up against a bunch of 12-year-old players, including quite a few boys, and she beat them all," said IRCC golf director and former two-time Lowell City Tournament champ Joe Miller. "It's a pretty cute story. She's quite a young golfer."

A budding Tigress, perhaps.

staffed," Stamas said. "We're ready and looking forward to a great summer."

Pomps swimmers will find fewer out-of-towners at the beach this summer because tour groups from other towns will not be using the pond. Stamas said Pomps is busy enough with Andover residents. In the past, church groups, day camps and other groups could arrive by bus and use the pond.

In addition, the price for non-residents has doubled this year. It costs $10 per person to use the pond compared to $5 last year.

"DCS is handling 1,200 kids a day this summer at various playgrounds at the elementary schools, day camps and other programs. Many of those kids use Pomps in addition to the families who come down for the day. We only have so much space here," Stamas said.

Visitors can also look forward to several improvements around the beach area. About $30,000 was budgeted for improvements. For example, new sand was recently trucked in while the concession stand has a new popcorn machine and a new microwave. Future plans call for a new water-playground, complete with a water slide, and a boat house to store canoes and boats. Last year, the pond was equipped with new docks.

DCS is offering swimming lessons and sailing lessons for youngsters at Pomps.

For more information, call 623-8273.

◀ We now join a Pomps Pond lifeguard-training class, already in progress.

Two AHS, Post 8 stars playing in the Mill City

By Rick Harrison

Two former Andover High and Andover Post 8 American Legion baseball standouts are spending their summer playing for the Mill City All-Americans based out of Lowell.

Brian Tisbert and Mark O'Sullivan are members of the All-Americans, a first-year entry in the New England Collegiate Baseball League.

The eight-team summer league, loosely patterned after the highly successful Cape Cod League, showcases players who must still be enrolled in college to participate.

Tisbert, who plays second base for Mill City, is a senior at the University of Connecticut (NCAA Division I) and O'Sullivan, an outfielder/pitcher, is a junior at Division 2 power Rollins College in Winter Park, Fla.

The roster is comprised primarily of players from eastern Massachusetts and southern New Hampshire, but Mill City also has a few Florida and Maryland residents.

All of the players are hoping to one day make it to the major leagues, and the use of wooden bats (rather than aluminum) by the league makes it more attractive for the pro scouts.

The 42-game season began June 11 and Mill City, the only team based in Massachusetts, is holding its own (3-3 after six games).

Home games are played at Stoklosa Alumni Field, located at the junctions of Rtes. 38 and 495 in Lowell. Admission is a very reasonable $2 for adults while kids 14 and under are admitted free.

run to the plate in the seventh, after Volinski singled, but the locals could not come up with the big hit.

Volinski allowed only four hits, striking out seven and walking three, in 5 2/3 innings. Rich Sheldon came on to record the final out after the 'slam.

Eight of the nine Post 8 starters hit safely, led by Volinski and Salini with two each. Josh Topp doubled and adding a single apiece were Kevin Shepard, Danny Hughes, Chris Hanlon and Chris Krey.

Hanlon played an outstanding defensive game at short.

Andover 9 Winthrop 5

In the season opener at Aumais Park, Post 8 broke an early 2-2 tie and led 9-2 before Winthrop rallied for three runs in the seventh.

Righthander Jason White (1-0) pitched six strong innings, scattering four Post 8 hits while fanning five and walking one. He yielded two runs one unearned.

Trailing 1-0 in the bottom of the first, Andover took the lead when Kevin Shepard singled, Dave Powers drew a two-out walk and Sean Law-

Interiors by White Street Custom Interior Design

White Street Paint and Wallpaper Company announces the opening of a new store in North Andover's Butcher Boy Marketplace: Interiors by White Street. Continuing in the tradition begun over 50 years ago by the original store, Interiors by White Street provides the same high quality customer service, paint, wallpaper, and supplies. The store brings something new with its emphasis on offering a complete interior design service and by adding flooring and window treatments to its stock.

Store manager Colin Scanlon explains that for a very reasonable price, two full-time interior decorators, Donna Fernald and Frank Girard, are available to assist customers with the entire process of decorating their home. All you need to do is make an appointment with Donna or Frank for a house call. They help you decide what direction you want to go in coordinating paint, wallpaper, flooring and window treatment. You then meet them in the store to look at the samples they have put together that best match your taste. This will help you narrow down the number of choices from the wide selection of premium paints, wall coverings, window treatments, and flooring, including hardwood, ceramic tile, marble, and carpet. To make things even easier, paint can be custom color matched to other items such as fabric, carpet, etc. Interiors by White Street offers you the further convenience of installing flooring and window treatments and provides referrals for painters and paperhangers. With so many decisions and arrangements that need to be made when decorating your home, you are sure to appreciate the invaluable assistance you will receive at Interiors by White Street.

Visit Interiors by White Street at 1109 Osgood St. (Rte. 125), North Andover, in the Butcher Boy Marketplace. Telephone (978) 688-4442. Hours are Mon., Wed., Fri. 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Tues. and Thurs. 9 a.m. to 8 p.m.; Sat. 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Dennis' Beauty Shoppe

Since 1972, Dennis' Beauty Shoppe in North Andover has been providing quality hair care.

Owner Dennis Martin and his staff of Tracey Rabbito-Masson, Anne Henry, and George Kayajan specialize in precision cuts combined with high fashion styling. Permanents, body waves, highlighting, corrective coloring, waxing, and makeup consultations are just a few of the many services offered by this complete hair salon. The staff is very attentive to their clients and always take that extra step to ensure that their clients look sensational.

"A person's image depends largely on healthy, fashionable hair and a fashionable hairstyle or color can make a person feel more confident and attractive," said hair color specialist Tracey Rabbito-Masson. Tracey suggests multi-dimensional highlighting using shades of blond and red to create a natural, sun-lightened look. "Layering long hair is still very popular and keeping short cuts messy-looking is not only low-maintenance, but also a popular style," said Tracy.

The shoppe caters to both men and women, with special rates to seniors and children under 12. Gift certificates are available. business."

Sewer rates remained at $1.98 from 1991 to 1999. Sewer users paid only 30 cents per 100 cubic feet of water used when the rate was first adopted in 1975, and today they pay $2.42.

Between fiscal years 1985 and 2001, the sewer rate has climbed from 67 cents per 100 cubic feet, to the current $2.42.

Despite this coming year's increase, the town projects a sewer budget deficit of about $13,000 for next year. But Torrisi says that because the numbers are estimates, the small projected deficit is insignificant.

"Our goal is always to maintain a self-sufficient system," he says. "We set the rate based on the cost."

Water rates

Besides their sewer-rate costs, sewer-using residents pay another $2.52 per 100 cubic feet for water.

Between fiscal year 1985 and the coming 2001 fiscal year, water rates have increased from 95 cents per 100 cubic feet to $2.52. Water rates have not changed since FY '95.

The amount Andover charges other communities for its water has also risen since 1985. While in 1985 Andover charged $1.17 per 100 cubic feet, since 1994 it has demanded $3.02.
